

Ready to jump into your journalism and strategic communication career?

The school offers several opportunities for students to get engaged and involved

Professional News Opportunities

KOMU-TV 8

The area's NBC affiliate, KOMU is the only university-owned commercial major network affiliate in the U.S. First-year students have opportunities as production assistants (PAs), desk assistants (DAs), live operators and floor directors.

- Sign-up to be on the email list at <https://tinyurl.com/2n2mmys7>

Missouri Business Alert

A digital newsroom that publishes the top business news from across the state. Opportunities include reporting and marketing. Students must go through an interview process with faculty

- Reporting contact: Michael Stacy, stacyjm@missouri.edu
- Marketing contact: Lorah Lackland, lacklandl@missouri.edu

Photojournalism at Columbia Missourian
